CREEMORE SPRINGS PARIS TO ANCASTER BICYCLE RACE

Winter is Here: Here's a Tip to Stay Ready to Ride

Look at all that snow! After the holidays, many riders are dusting off their bikes and getting back in the saddle—whether that means easing into indoor training, enjoying crisp winter rides, or simply rebuilding a routine after some well-earned rest.

This time of year is all about consistency over intensity: short, steady rides, light strength work, and mobility can make a big difference in how strong you feel come spring. One simple tip to stay riding-ready is to keep your bike fit and flexible—regularly stretching hips, hamstrings, and lower back, and doing a quick bike check even if you're riding less often. A little maintenance now goes a long way toward a smoother, stronger start to the spring cycling season.
